

Erline Lambericks
International Relations

Lecture and Workshop

Most people are familiar enough with the events of the 20th century. But what they often don't realise is that there are many lessons we can learn from these events. The movie "The Fog of War" features Robert S. McNamara, a leading figure during much of the second half of the 20th century. In a conversation with filmmaker Errol Morris, he talks about the lessons he learned from his experiences in World War II, as Secretary of Defense, and as President of the World Bank. We will be watching this movie, and applying Mr. McNamara's lessons to figure out the answer to the following question: "What kind of world do we want for the 21st century?".